

Services for Manufacturers and Distributors

Diverse Services, Expert Support

The return of manufacturing to the U.S. is a welcome one with benefits that extend to retailers, consumers and distributors. Demand is on the upswing despite increasing competition and shrinking margins. Although price increases are difficult to engineer, many other enticing growth strategies are well worth exploring – from cost-cutting and workflow improvements to automation, outsourcing, acquisitions and global expansion.

The key, of course, is to seize these opportunities in ways that align with everyday operations and overall business objectives – precisely what O'Connor Davies specialists help our clients achieve every day.

Strategies for a Changing Business Arena

Our business advisory specialists deploy experience in both the manufacturing and distribution sectors to help ensure that our clients' businesses are in synch with today's demands, technology and best practices. Count on our in-depth industry knowledge and strategic insight for help weighing whether and how to:

- Make a capital investment to update plants.
- Outsource all or part of your operations to a third party.
- Remain a vital link between manufacturers and consumers.
- Take the reins from a retiring family member.
- Improve profitability through automation.
- Choose between buying and leasing real estate.
- Outsource or expand internationally.
- Entertain a merger, acquisition or joint venture.

We can also identify opportunities for mitigating your overall tax liability through skillful business entity structuring. When the time comes to contemplate domestic expansion, understanding the tax implications is critical; we can help determine when such moves will trigger additional taxes and how to meet this expense within regulatory guidelines, avoiding onerous penalties and back tax payments.
